

Joseph Riedel is a writer, director, and educator located and operating out of the NYC, Westchester, and Fairfield county areas. He holds a Masters in Theater Instruction from Temple University. With extensive work as an improv comedian, Joseph's sensibilities as a writer come from a sense of play. The darker and more interesting a concept is to explore, the more he wants to have fun with it and delve into its meaning. His primary focus is empowering his audience and his learners to find their voice and use art to express the ideas that are most important to them. His newest play, It's Hell Out There, premiered earlier this November (2022).
